

JAMES RONALD MALOY

PERSONAL DETAILS

Address: 100 Vaneal Rd.
Washington, PA 15301
USA

Mobile: 724 470 6674
Telephone: 724 222 6684
Email: maloy@pitt.edu

PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE

September 2014—
Present University of Pittsburgh
Lecturer 2, Department of Economics

August 2006—
August 2014 University of Pittsburgh
Lecturer, Department of Economics

Responsibilities include:

- Instructing courses in introductory micro-and macroeconomics, intermediate macroeconomics, European Union economics and money, banking and financial markets to undergraduate students
- Advising numerous independent studies and similar projects, both in the Department of Economics as well as the University Honors College
- Supervise undergraduate teaching assistants for my courses
- Administrative duties

January 2005—
June 2006 Royal Holloway, University of London
Tutor, Department of European Studies

Responsibilities included:

- Providing seminar instruction on the government and politics of the European Union

September 2001—
June 2005 Royal Holloway, University of London
Lecturer, Department of Economics

Responsibilities included:

- Designing and delivering lectures and seminars in various subjects including 2nd-year Macroeconomics and European Union economics
- Providing dissertation supervision for final-year undergraduates
- Serving as a personal academic advisor to undergraduate students

September 2000—
June 2001 Royal Holloway, University of London
Teaching Assistant, Department of Economics

Responsibilities included:

- Instructing seminars and tutorials in second year macroeconomics
- Preparing each class with minimal departmental supervision.

EDUCATION

September 2001–
September 2006

Royal Holloway, University of London
Ph.D. Economics (Degree Awarded 31 May 2007)

Research Areas:

Macroeconomics, Political Economy, Monetary Economics

Thesis Title:

“The Political Economy of Partisan Politics, Elections, and Central Bank Independence”

Thesis Details:

Econometric analyses of the effects of elections and central bank institutions on the macroeconomic performance of OECD nations; experimental investigation of the effects of politically-induced inflation uncertainty on wage bargaining

- Served as Lecturer in the Department throughout my PhD studies

September 2000–
September 2001

Royal Holloway, University of London
M.Sc. Economics (With Distinction)

Subjects Studied:

Macroeconomics, Microeconomics, Political Economy, Industrial Economics, Econometrics

- Awarded Home Fees Scholarship and Teaching Fellowship
- Completed a dissertation on the effects of partisan business cycles and central bank independence in OECD nations
- Gained a strong mathematical background

September 1996–
May 2000

Washington and Jefferson College (Pennsylvania, USA)
B.A. Economics (Cum Laude)

Subjects Studied:

Economic Theory, International and Monetary Economics, Mathematical Economics, Spanish, US and UK History, Accounting, Entrepreneurial Studies

- Awarded a four-year Presidential Scholarship
- Awarded a four-year Eagle Scholarship for Entrepreneurial Studies
- Graduated Cum Laude with a GPA of 3.66
- Studied abroad at Royal Holloway, University of London

September 1992 –
June 1996

McGuffey High School (Pennsylvania, USA)
High School Diploma (top 5% of class)

SKILLS

Language: Spanish: Intermediate speaking, reading, writing

Computing: Solid knowledge of econometric and computing software including STATA, LaTeX, and Microsoft Office

REFERENCES

References are available upon request.